

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

September 30, 2016

Ms. Kinsey's Students
Normal, Illinois

Dear Students:

Thank you for writing. Hearing from thoughtful, engaged students like you gives me great hope for the future, and I am glad you took the time to share your views with me.

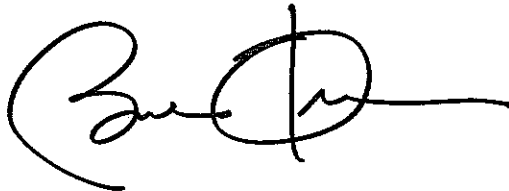

I am absolutely committed to making sure you and your generation can go as far in life as your talents and hard work will take you. And more than anything else, that means building an education system that is worthy of your potential. It means strong support for every teacher, high standards for every school, and cutting-edge learning tools for every classroom.

As your President, I will never stop working to make that vision a reality. Because a good education is not just the best investment you can make in your future—it is the best investment our country can make in a strong economy and lasting opportunity for everybody.

As we keep making progress toward these goals, I want you to keep dreaming big and studying hard. If you stay focused on your education, I know there are no limits to what you can accomplish.

Thank you, again, for writing. I wish you all the best.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to be Barack Obama's signature, written in a cursive style.