Trust Based Relational Intervention: Empowering Principles

Goal: To prepare “bodies and brains” for success by meeting physical needs and to prepare an environment that meets the physical and psychological needs of children and youth.

1. Ecological Strategies Part 2
2. Physiological Strategies

Here are some ways to practice Routine and Transitions in your home:

Routines

Routines help to create a sense of predictability and control for your child. They also help with smooth transitions.

Consider:

- Having a calendar with the schedule for your child to view
- Bedtime stories
- Snack at 10am each day

Transitions

Transitions can be a challenging time for our kids from hard places.

Try saying:

- “In 5 minutes, we will go home”
- “Pick the last 2 things you want to do on the playground before we go” to give the child a warning.
